I was inspired by Kristen Lee-Moolman. When we were first introduced to the exhibit, I was immediately drawn to Moolman's work. Her work caught my eye because she and I have a very similar style. Later, I went home and did some research on her, and went through hundreds of her photos. I was very intrigued by all her portrait fashion style photos. I wanted to create something similar by using a white backdrop, but then also make it mine by adding a twist with the mirror. I coordinated the green tights with the green eyeshadow to add a pop of color, and then had my model wear the translucent heels to tie the look together.
