

NORTON MUSEUM OF ART

AAO Virtual Exhibition

Farmworker Coordinating Council

View them here <https://f.io/a56MXZ0G>

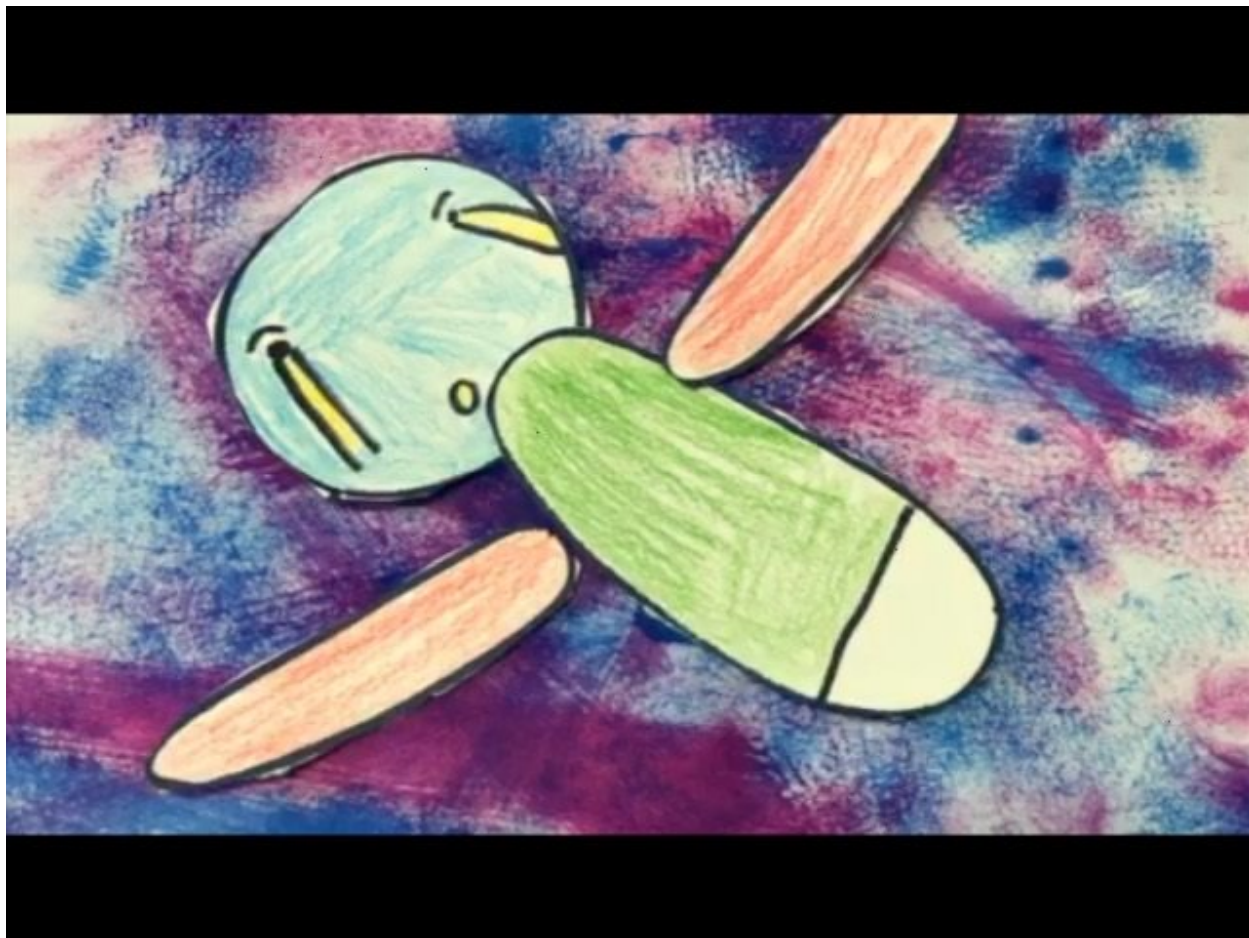

BRADLEY LÓPEZ

Age 8

Drawing on Watercolor Paper, Paper Cutouts (Animation)

Teaching Artist Ingrid Sanchez

The students at Farmworker Coordinating Council created multiple stop-motion animations about familiar places and people using drawing and paper cutouts. Each animation project stemmed from an exploration of the Norton's collection and allowed each student to reflect on and represent the people and places important to their community. Students were introduced to new and unique art-making skills, while also learning about the Museum's collection and the wider world of video art. The project created a fun and interactive environment where the participating students learned, experimented, and bonded with their peers.

JASMINE VELÁZQUEZ

Age 8

Drawing on Watercolor Paper, Paper Cutouts (Animation)

Teaching Artist Ingrid Sanchez

The students at Farmworker Coordinating Council created multiple stop-motion animations about familiar places and people using drawing and paper cutouts. Each animation project stemmed from an exploration of the Norton's collection and allowed each student to reflect on and represent the people and places important to their community. Students were introduced to new and unique art-making skills, while also learning about the Museum's collection and the wider world of video art. The project created a fun and interactive environment where the participating students learned, experimented, and bonded with their peers.

DOMINGOS VELÁZQUEZ

Age 11

Drawing on Watercolor Paper, Paper Cutouts (Animation)

Teaching Artist Ingrid Sanchez

The students at Farmworker Coordinating Council created multiple stop-motion animations about familiar places and people using drawing and paper cutouts. Each animation project stemmed from an exploration of the Norton's collection and allowed each student to reflect on and represent the people and places important to their community. Students were introduced to new and unique art-making skills, while also learning about the Museum's collection and the wider world of video art. The project created a fun and interactive environment where the participating students learned, experimented, and bonded with their peers.

CATALINA VELÁZQUEZ

Age 10

Drawing on Watercolor Paper, Paper Cutouts (Animation)

Teaching Artist Ingrid Sanchez

The students at Farmworker Coordinating Council created multiple stop-motion animations about familiar places and people using drawing and paper cutouts. Each animation project stemmed from an exploration of the Norton's collection and allowed each student to reflect on and represent the people and places important to their community. Students were introduced to new and unique art-making skills, while also learning about the Museum's collection and the wider world of video art. The project created a fun and interactive environment where the participating students learned, experimented, and bonded with their peers.

CINDY LÓPEZ

Age 8

Drawing on Watercolor Paper, Paper Cutouts (Animation)

Teaching Artist Ingrid Sanchez

The students at Farmworker Coordinating Council created multiple stop-motion animations about familiar places and people using drawing and paper cutouts. Each animation project stemmed from an exploration of the Norton's collection and allowed each student to reflect on and represent the people and places important to their community. Students were introduced to new and unique art-making skills, while also learning about the Museum's collection and the wider world of video art. The project created a fun and interactive environment where the participating students learned, experimented, and bonded with their peers.

ANGELICA LÓPEZ

Age 6

Drawing on Watercolor Paper, Paper Cutouts (Animation)

Teaching Artist Ingrid Sanchez

The students at Farmworker Coordinating Council created multiple stop-motion animations about familiar places and people using drawing and paper cutouts. Each animation project stemmed from an exploration of the Norton's collection and allowed each student to reflect on and represent the people and places important to their community. Students were introduced to new and unique art-making skills, while also learning about the Museum's collection and the wider world of video art. The project created a fun and interactive environment where the participating students learned, experimented, and bonded with their peers.